HERBIE: IMUR

- This is a video of Herbie and his wife Hannah-Lore, and his choice of hospice care at home, so he could die at home in Ireland.
- We do see Herbie die in this video with his wife at his side.
 - This can potentially be a triggering video for those that have experienced loss . If you feel this may be triggering, it is NOT mandatory to watch.
- It does show how hospice volunteers support an end-of-life journey and allowing for the client to have choice, independence and dignity.

NOTE 2 areas:

- What are some positive things you notice about Herbie's EOL journey?
 - Physically, mentally, relationally, medically?
- What are some physical signs and any other observations Herbie shows as he actively enters his EOL journey?
 - NOTE: It can be distressing to see him in his last hours, BUT please know this is normal and he is not in any pain or discomfort.
 - Volunteers are not typically at the side of a client when they are actively dying, but may see them days before they do.
